Yes, we like good news but right now we're more interested in the truth

"Hey LRH! I think you should have done things differently."

The ultimate betrayal

What would you think about a person who:

1. Is imprisoned and tortured by the junta
2. After being rescued, is critical towards his rescuer's ways

The guy has been starving in a cage and been rescued, and he then says to his rescuer:

"Hey, you shouldn't have took the path via the ditch, now your trousers are all dirty. You should have sneaked around those bushes instead."

They have wins

We see them among us, among the independents. They obviously had life changing wins, important wins according to their own testimonies.

Now, after LRH being gone for 24 years, these smart asses are critical of LRH's ways. Is this big bellied or what? What size of a belly do you need to not being considerate about this?

They had use of LRH*s work

Many of them haven't even met LRH. They took advantage of the organisation that he built, they had use of the courses, the knowledge, the books, the auditing, they had use of these things, more use than they could wish for in many cases.

Had LRH not succeeded in building this organisation they would probably never have heard of the knowledge.

AND NOW IN 2010 THEY SIT HERE COMPLAINING ON THE WEB ABOUT WHAT WAS "WRONG" WITH HIS MANNERS?!?

We're talking about big bellies, people.

Will they publish their own materials?

Ok, so what will they be doing? Will they publish books with the "correct" teaching? Will they publish the "mistakes" of LRH? Will they be correcting them and save us all?

I'm so damn tired of these two faced people, making themselves look important on LRH's expense.

If LRH was sitting in front of them they would not breathe any critique. It would just show their total lack of competence should they try it:

"Eh, Mr. Hubbard, it would be better if you didn't use so much energy putting together an organisation."

They wouldn't even consider this. They are foolish cowards.
