Yes, we like good news but right now we're interested in the truth

Jeff Hawkin's blog <http://leavingscientology.wordpress.com/> has been entertaining. He has 35 years of Sea Org behind him, a good language and interesting stories.

Unfortunately now Jeff's out of stories and he is more and more getting into a war against Scientology.

It's no secret that Jeff doesn't see himself as a scientologist. His blog is named "Leaving Scientology". At first I thought this was a name picked because it is easy to remember, but now I understand that this is what he is trying to say: Leave Scientology.

I left the church because the church management was perverting the philosophy. Hawkins blog was interesting to me because it documented this perversion, but now I feel betrayed by him. He's been pretending to be on my side in the struggle against Miscavige but his real battle is against Scientology. He has shown two faces.

I recommend you stop pretending to be a friend of the scientologists who leave the church. Show your real face, Jeff.
